

Reduced water flow by specifying an aerator

An aerator on a tap used for handwashing will reduce the flow while still providing plenty of water. Aerators should not be specified for taps on fixtures such as baths where a larger volume of water is required.

© BRANZ 2007